Music was never a question for Xander Smooth — only a matter of when.

Born in Jamaica and based in Boston, he came up singing gospel in the church choir, teaching himself the phrasing of the greats: Mariah Carey, Celine Dion, Lionel Richie, Michael Bolton. That ear for melody and emotion never left him, even through a successful career in IT — the pull back to his first love was simply too strong to ignore.

In the summer of 2020, he answered it. Since then he's released a string of singles that have found listeners around the world — proof that honest songwriting still travels. His lane is the ballad: he means every word, moving from a full-chest belt on a heartbreak track to a weightless falsetto on something tender — contemporary R&B and soul built on an old-school foundation.

Recent sessions in Hollywood and Beverly Hills have sharpened both his sound and his instincts, and he's pouring all of it into his biggest year yet: a debut album in 2026.

“I eat and breathe music, and I cannot wait to show the world what I can really do.”

Driven and just getting started, Xander Smooth is after longevity — the kind of artist listeners keep coming back to, always wondering what's next. Find him on every major streaming platform and across social media.
